A LIST OF SOME WASHTENAW COUNTY CIVIL WAR SOLDIERS FOUND IN H.H. HARDESTY'S PRESIDENTS, SOLDIERS, STATESMEN, VOLUME II

Contributed by Wayne H. Willeke, Ann Arbor

This rare book published in New York, Toledo and Chicago in 1892 by H.H. Hardesty, contains a great deal of genealogical information for those who had ancestors in the Civil War. Although a number of these books were produced for various parts of the country, they are rarely seen in libraries. The particular volume naming some Washtenaw County soldiers is found at the Pittsfield Township Historical Society's collection at the township hall. The first 564 pages contain a general history of the United States and especially a history of the Civil War. Pages 565 through 653 contain biographical sketches of soldiers varying from a few lines to occasionally more than one-half page. Other biographies refer to soldiers from other Michigan counties, including Gratiot County and Lenawee County. Many men from Monroe County and parts of northern Ohio are included. About 167 sketches are arranged in two alphabets. There is no index to the book and many, many names are buried in the text of these biographies.

Here is a partial list of local soldiers from volume II.

THE ROLE OF MICHIGAN IN THE ORGANIZATION OF THE UNION ARMY

Contributed by Wayne H. Willeke, Ann Arbor

The Union Army during the Civil War was composed of 19 smaller armies. Each army was composed of Corps. Each Corps was composed of Divisions. Each Division was composed of Brigades. Each Brigade was composed of Regiments. Each Regiment was composed of Companies. Each Company was composed of approximately 100 men.

Each soldier fit into this Union Army by being a member of the military groups from Company to Army. For example, Private John Jacob Schantz (1831-1909) served from 1861 to 1865 in Company K, 1 Michigan Regiment, 1 Brigade, 1 Divison, V Corps, Army of the Potomac. This was sometimes shrotened to Pvt. Schantz, Co. K, 1 Mich Inf.

The Union Army was divided into the Army of the Arkansas, Cumberland, Frontier, Georgia, Gulf, James, Kansas, Middle Department, Mississippi, Mountains, Ohio, Potomac, Shenandoah, South, South West, Virginia, Washington D.C., Tennessee and West Virginia. Of these the Army of the Potomac was the largest, containing nine Corps.

There was a total of 25 Corps in the Union Army which were numbered from I to XXV. Each Corps was composed of three Divisions. The Red Division was number 1, the White Divison was number 2 and the Blue Divison was number 3.

Divisions were made up of three Brigades, each being composed of four Regiments. The Regiments were divided into 10 or 12 Companies. Regiments were numbered but Companies used letter A through M with the exception J.

Michigan recruited 31 Regiments of Infantry, 11 Regiments of Cavalry and two Regiments of Artillery and Engineers. Michigan also furnished men for the Union Navy.

Two books stored in the Washtenaw County Courthouse hold the burial records of some soldiers of various wars. Most, but not all, burials were in Washtenaw County, Michigan. Some of the year dates appear to be incorrect. The handwriting in each book indicates that perhaps these are copies of original papers.
